Court-Ordered Psychological Evaluations: What They Are and How We Can Help

Being involved in a legal matter can be overwhelming—especially when the court requests a psychological evaluation. Whether you're facing a custody dispute, criminal case, or civil proceeding, it's natural to feel anxious or unsure of what to expect. At PINNACLE COUNSELING AND PSYCHOLOGICAL TESTING CENTER, we offer professional, unbiased court-ordered psychological evaluations that meet legal standards and provide clear, evidence-based insights.

What Is a Court-Ordered Psychological Evaluation?

A court-ordered psychological evaluation is an assessment required by a judge to understand an individual's mental health, fitness, or behavior as it relates to a legal matter. These evaluations may be required in:

- Child custody or family court cases
- Criminal court proceedings
- Guardianship or competency hearings
- Substance abuse and rehabilitation cases
- Mental health diversion programs

Our role is to provide clear, objective findings—not to judge or defend.

What Does the Evaluation Involve?

Each case is unique, but a typical court-ordered psychological evaluation at Pinnacle Counseling and Psychological Testing Center may include:

✔ Clinical interviews and psychosocial history
✔ Standardized psychological assessments (e.g., MMPI-2, WAIS-IV)
✔ Behavioral observations
✔ Collateral interviews or record reviews (if applicable)
✔ Formal written report with diagnostic impressions and recommendations

✔ Court-acceptable documentation, often including expert opinion

Our evaluations are carefully aligned with court requirements and submitted in a timely and confidential manner.
